

I oppose the proposed move by Sinclair Broadcasting to show an anti-Kerry documentary just weeks before the election. I urge you, the acting members of the FCC, to refer to your own integrity, and closely question whether this could ever be a decision made by a communications mogul who is committed to the media's responsibility of non-partisan reporting. The strategic nature of this documentary's showing at this time, and the lack of a counter documentary on Bush, indicate to me that Sinclair is indeed using its highly influential position to manipulate voter's perceptions.

A non-partisan media is such an important part of democracy. It is a balance of power to the government. We need to ensure that media doesn't simply become a strategic partisan tool. I urge you to take measures that will promote objective reporting in the future, and halt actions like this move of Sinclair. Thank you.
Anna Hawkins